Bank Raided.

LIMESTONE, Ind. January 23d—Four masked men, heavily armed, entered the Citizen's Bank Saturday and presented a pistol at the head of the cashier, W. T. Reynolds, and demanded that he hand over the cash. While pretending to comply Reynolds slammed the door of the safe and turned the lock. He was at once laid out by a bullet from the pistol of the desperadoes which killed him instantly. The robbers secured about $2,300. An armed body of men afterwards secured the robbers hung the leader and turned the balance over to the U. S. authorities. The stolen money was recovered.

Neil Burgess in "Vim."

A packed house greeted Neil Burgess in "Vim." "Laugh and grow fat" be a true saying, then those present will have to take some medicine this morning in order to reduce their flesh to a becoming weight. Such shouts and roars of laughter seldom, if ever, echoed through a theatre as were kept up continuously for three hours last night. It was one wild wave of hilarity from the rise until fall of the curtain. The revolving stage is an ingenious piece of mechanism, reflecting great credit upon its inventor, Mr. Burgess.—Sacramento Bee.

THE GROSMAN CASE.

PUBLIC SYMPATHY ENTIRELY WITH THE ACCUSED.

Alleged to be the Victim of a Conspiracy.

There does not seem to be anyone in town who believes that Max Grosman committed rape on the Grey child, or attempted to. Although the charge was one of the blackest that can be made against a man, on the day following his arrest the bail of $5,000 was promptly furnished by the following parties: Blumenthal & Cohn, Jacob Tobriner, Jacob Klein, Walter Chedec and Daniel Corbett. These men came unsolicited after investigating the facts in the case, and went on his bond.

A WITNESS FOR GROSMAN.

Wm Lenberg, the man who drove Grosman to his store, makes a strong statement in his favor. He said that Grosman got out of his buggy when he saw the child at the door, and let her in, and told Lenberg to wait outside with the horse. The door was left open while the child was in there, and she was not there over a minute and a half, when she came out with a small bundle in her hand containing a pair of corsets she had purchased for her mother. As she came out she wore a smiling face, and her manner showed no evidence of her having been made the victim of a criminal assault. She tripped out smilingly and started up the street. Grosman was not in the store with her any longer than would have been necessary for him to have taken a pair of corsets out of a box and done them up.

A gentleman who was passing at the time partially corroborates this statement.

CONSIDERED AS A CONSPIRACY.

The affair is generally looked upon as a conspiracy to injure Grosman. The mother of the child had owed him $40 for some time, and he had called at the house on the same day that the assault is alleged to have occurred.

It is also claimed that the assault was made by another party, and the child is trying to fasten it on Grosman. His bondsmen believe him innocent, and made an investigation of his case before going on his bond. They are perfectly satisfied of his innocence, and say that enough will be shown on his preliminary examination to fully establish it.

He has retained Messrs. Coffin and Edwards as his attorneys, and the two gentlemen are busy collecting evidence.

Five years ago Grosman had a large store in Galveston, Texas, and it was destroyed by a flood. He was then worth between forty and fifty thousand dollars.

After his loss he came to this city and began life again at the foot of the ladder as a peddler, and carried his goods from house to house. During his stay here he has paid his debts regularly and dealt honestly by his patrons.

Several Jews of Virginia City, who had known him for years, came down on Sunday and offered him money or any other assistance in their power.

At the present writing public opinion in this city is wholly with Grosman. The case will come up before Justice Witherell on Thursday next at 10 o'clock in the morning.

DR. HARMON.

A Man who Treats Eyes by Machinery.

Dr. Harmon, the Russian optician, who has been at the Ormsby House for several days past, has surprised a good many people by the accuracy and proficiency of his work.

A good many spectacle peddlers have been in this city, but never before a scientific optician.

He does everything by machinery. An optician with a false eye of his own cannot properly treat his patients. Dr. Harmon will not trust his own eye in so delicate a matter, and relies solely on his wonderful instrument, which is as true in measuring the eyesight as a pair of assayer's scales is sure in weighing gold.

His instrument is too complicated for description, and is best illustrated by this cut:

It contains 144 lenses, and accurately gauges every fault of vision. The long-sighted eye, the near-sighted eye or the astigmatic eye is detected at a glance.

This instrument is the Doctor's own invention, and is the only one in existence. He has it exclusively for his own use, and has never offered one for sale.

It is a pleasure to go into his room and order a pair of spectacles.

An instrument like a telescope is placed to the patron's eye, and he is allowed to adjust it until the word "focus" can be plainly seen in the tube.

An index registers the number of the lenses, and he lifts the glasses out of his collection corresponding to that number, and they are just right.

His glasses are cut Brazilian pebble, ground from the crystal, and not the melted flint glass of commerce, which has blinded thousands.

A man can transact his business in five minutes with the Doctor, and go away fitted with glasses which will make the rest of his life happy, and last till he dies.

A man of such inventive talent is a benefit to the world.

AFTER THE FRANKELS.

P. Deidesheimer Showing up the Stock Deal.

P. Deidesheimer has sued L. B. Frankel and others. Plaintiff states that from October, 1878, to the 8th of March 1882, he authorized the defendant, who is a stockbroker in Virginia City, to purchase mining stock for him. After the last named date the plaintiff went to Mexico and defendant obtained a judgment against him for $32,631 70, alleged to be due from plaintiff to defendant upon the depreciation of stocks purchased and sold by defendant for plaintiff. He afterwards was informed that Frankel, who had made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors, had for several years made fictitious charges against his customers. He believes that the account upon which defendant Frankel obtained his judgment was made up of charges against the plaintiff for simulated or "short" sales of mining stocks, which were never paid by Frankel. Plaintiff therefore prays that the judgment obtained by Frankel against him may be declared void, that defendants may be restrained from enforcing it and from prosecuting any suit based on said judgment.

The Rain.

Yesterday's rain was predicted by the storm signals on the Capitol building. It was a good, steady down pour and will insure a good run of the mills for a long time.
